THE TRIBUNE.

FRIDAY, OCT. 6, 1854.

That some persons in Canada begin to look upon the influx of fugitive slaves in that country as an evil, may be inferred from a motion made in the Canadian Legislature, that the same capitalization tax now imposed on all strangers entering the province, be exacted in full from black immigrants.

The Hickman Argus says: "It is now universally conceded that Col. Lin Boyd will not be a candidate for re-election." Among the aspirants for the succession it names Col. R. D. Gholson, of Ballard, (who, by the way, is already a candidate,) W. B. MacKen, Esq., of Lyon, L. S. Trimble, Esq., of McCracken, Col. Wm. Bradley, of Hopkins, Osburn Turner, Esq., of Ballard, and H. C. Burnett, Esq., of Trigg.

The seal of Kansas Territory has been engraved at Philadelphia under the direction of Gov. Reeder. It consists of a shield, supported on one side by a pine-tree with his hunting shirt, leggings, rifle, and tomahawk, and on the other side by the goddess Ceres, with a sheaf at her foot. Between the two, a fallen tree and axe appear. The shield is surrounded by a scroll bearing the motto, populi vero nata.—Born of the voice of the people.

TAKING TICKETS NO THEFT.—From a decision just rendered by Judge Robinson, at Albany, it appears that the taking of railroad, steamboat, or admission tickets of any kind is no theft. The Atlas says that one Andrews was arrested for taking sixty New Central Railroad tickets from on board the steamer Manhattan. Judge Robinson decided that railroad tickets were not the subject of larceny, on the ground that they were not of any intrinsic value until disposed of by the company to bona fide purchasers.

THE PURCHASE OF CUBA.—The N. Y. Express says it has it from authentic sources, that Mr. Soule has been renewing the offer to Spain for the purchase of Cuba; and that he agreed to give more than $100,000,000, the sum said to have been tendered during President Polk's administration. The Spanish Ministers, who are greatly in want of funds, although sorely tempted by the jingle of so many millions, gave the proposition some little attention, but only to reject it.

HORRIBLE ACCIDENT.—We learn from the Georgetown Herald that on Friday, 22d inst., Giserva, a little daughter of John D. Gault, of Oxford, Scott co., Ky., was burned to death by her clothes taking fire at the stove. She was a few days over five years old. The deceased and a sister still younger were alone in the room at the time. Going too near the stove, her clothes caught fire. She rushed to her mother in another room, who promptly wrapped her gown around the child and extinguished the flames. But too late; she was burned so she died in a short time.

SELECT POETRY.

Love and Marriage.

A BACHELOR'S GROWL.

When lovers are wooing and cooing,
Pursuing some woman for wife,
Nought is thought of the storm that is brewing
To bring cloudy weather for life;
But those who have given up their loves
From the footfall of Cupid that spring,
Knew there grow in Hymenial bower,
Thorns, nettles, and briars that sting.

Heavens never woe was true;
She avows she allows not a beau
To see, nor, appear as aught to her,
Save as one that she slightly may know.
But those who are where they might,
And such little persons make,
Can't conceive how the loves can lie—
Under such misfits of mistakes.

Their style of exclusive devotion
Is all very well in its way;
But this very unsociable nose
They find it often causes—"doubt pay."
"My love,"—will last for a while,
For a while be at intervals kissed;
But, though part by many a smile,
This rarely that Madame is Missed.

This "paying addresses" possesses—
A charm, as each lover allows,
But repeatedly paying for dresses,
Must follow by payment of rows.
Thus, though the other couples
That each hapless sufferer fills,
Yet Hymen, more honest, reveals
His duty of "paying up" bills.

The cherub promised by Cupid,
With cherubs as guardian spirits,
Is rendered remarkably stupid
To see who must be there o' nights.
The cherub is all of a tuck;
Through the fact is a lover beneath;
And his "Heaven below" is replete
With wailing and cutting of teeth.

But a lover will never discover
A fault in the one he would wed;
From his dream never seems to recover,
Till his lamb at the altar is led,
His idol then proves not ideal;
Still worship is possibly can;
Yet, though he may love what is real,
You'll allow he's an starved man.

ENIGMA.—For a length of time it baffled the skill of all England to solve:

There is a word of plural number,
None to be found in any common slumber,
None to award you change to take,
By adding S, your plural make;
But if you add on S to this,
How strange the metamorphosis!
Plural is then no more,
And sweet what bitter was before.

SOLUTION.—The word is care, to which by adding an s, you have care.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The White Curl Papers

"You're a hateful tantalizing thing!" cried Miss Popkin, the pretty matinéemakher, to her late lover, Mr. Augustus Tenon, a young carpenter, who had just set up for himself, and had married the popular beauty, whom he had just accused of the unpardonable sin of flitting.

"Ve' well, Julia—it's all very well," said Miss Popkin, the pretty matinéemakher, to her late lover, Mr. Augustus Tenon, a young carpenter, who had just set up for himself, and had married the popular beauty, whom he had just accused of the unpardonable sin of flitting.

"Now we've saved it off square," said the carpenter, "it no use to have any splicing and joining work afterwards. I mean the separation shall stand."

"Oh, minds agree on that matter," said Mrs. Mixon, on the delusion. Escalpines, Col. Magruder commanded him to desist from the interview, and to "henceforth hold his peace."

With admirable strategy the doctor backed up against an adjacent fence, where he could derive considerable safety and advantage, and with most immense dignity replied, "Col. Magruder, I'm roffiser of the army; when I'm at' mission, I'm under your gen'r'l consider sef-so-and obey it; but when I'm down here, sir! screeching—'Oh, I'm bound to a butcher, by heavens, or I'll be a dog!' and all the rest."

This unfortunate song had, somehow or other, occurred to the doctor; he couldn't get rid of it; he couldn't help singing it; and, accordingly, when the whole party were duly ranged beneath the window, and, with fitter and voices upraised, were solemnly bleating forth

"Off in the stilly night."

The entertainments were disagreeably varied;

for far louder than the "stilly night," rang the wild military chauvin, only varied by an occasional holler.

"Oh, my name is Jake Keyser," &c.

This was not to be borne, so turning fiercely on the delusion, Escalpines, Col. Magruder commanded him to desist from the interview, and to "henceforth hold his peace."

"I am afraid you'll be disappointed," responded Caroline, who was looking out of the window, "for there comes Mrs. Henshaw up the street."

"I'm sorry I hope not. I would rather have it anybody else, she's such a tiresome old creature, and sure to stay all the afternoon."

Further conversation was interrupted by the bell, which confirmed Mrs. Mixon's apprehensions.

"My dear Mrs. Henshaw," said that lady, clearing her brow at once, "how delighted I am to see you, I was just saying to Caroline, that it was so loudly sitting here, I wish somebody would come in. How's Mr. Henshaw? Well, I hope."

"No, I'm sorry to say, he isn't at all well, and I came over to see if you had any acquaintance that you would let me have; he thinks it would do him good."

"Mr. Henshaw sick! I am very sorry for him and myself too, as I was counting upon having you spend the afternoon with us, though under such circumstances, I shouldn't think of asking you to do so."

"I should like nothing better than to stay if Mr. Henshaw were well. Good morning."

"There, we've got rid of her. How lucky that Mr. Henshaw was sick, otherwise we should have had her billeted upon us for the afternoon. I wish I could get rid of her every time, so small a sacrifice as that of a little cannone."

"What an agreeable and obliging woman Mrs. Mixon is!" soliloquized Mrs. Henshaw, "and how much I should be disappointed if I couldn't get her to come in."

"Mrs. Henshaw had something to learn before she could comprehend that 'all is not fair that seems so.'

He soon made his appearance, paid his respects, and commenced his duties.

"What a delightful occupation!" he murmured, as he leaned over the head of his mentor.

"Thus to arbor beauty for conquest. And to feel that while we're preparing her for admision, she's only fit for admision."

"And have more of the fair ladies whose heads you dress, ever touched your heart, Julia?"

"Julia, don't pull my back hair."

Frizelle, the barber, had that morning received a note from the fair one, requesting his professional services, to dress her hair for a ball, to which they were both invited, and he came along to help her comb and plait her hair at the same time. He was a little time-worn, wearily fatigued, and now, to render it more trimme, the fair Julia hastened to secure her withered hair.

"It happened to be a dagnercotype," said the young carpenter, as he pocketed the affront.

"Begone, sir!" cried the young lady, stamping her foot.

"I obey you with pleasure," replied the rejected, "and I wish you joy of your new conquest." Frizzelle is a charming fellow—fifty at least—wears one of his own wigs. I overheard you last night assuring him that he was the first that ever touched your heart—and you only secured the little weazened-faced boy by that falsehood."

With these stinging words the young man withered away. Who had severed these young hearts? Those who had, after they lay waste the gardens of this world—thoroughly ransacked the earth.

But the rupture had been so sudden, and the young Julia had worn there for weeks, and hurried back at the offender. "Take your picture back. That was fast, too, like all the rest. It was shockingly flattered."

"I happened to be a dagnercotype," said the young carpenter, as he pocketed the affront.

"Begone, sir!" cried the young lady, stamping her foot.

"I obey you with pleasure," replied the rejected, "and I wish you joy of your new conquest."

"And have more of the fair ladies whose heads you dress, ever touched your heart, Julia?"

"Julia, don't pull my back hair."

"I obey you with pleasure," replied the rejected, "and I wish you joy of your new conquest."

"Well, sir, when you get into battle, will you fight or run?"

"Be my faith," replied the Hibernian, "I'll be after doing, yer honor, as the majority of them does."

"Give me that paper, instantly!" she exclaimed, springing to her feet.

"Not till I've read every word of it!" cried the barber. "It's your handwriting—your name at the bottom. You call that cursed carpenter your dearest love, and you call me a weazened-faced old monkey. F. stands for Frizzle, ma'am, and I weazened-faced monkey in a wig, means me, I wear a wig, ma'am! You're a deceiver, ma'am."

"It was a brief meeting, but brief as it was, the deep, manly voice of the carpenter who had traced Frizzle to the house, and wished to ruin his happiness, as his own had been destroyed.

"To that gipsy! that first!"

"Oh! Augustus," cried the young lady, lady, bursting into tears, "will you suffer this old writhing brute to touch me?"

The appeal was not made in vain. The young carpenter seized the barber, grinning like an old vindictive ape, by the nap of his neck, and the next moment he was spinning down the staircase without an opportunity to count the steps.

The poet tells us that the quards of loves end in a renewal of love. Before the arrival of the Julia, there were on more "understanding terms" than ever, and, when he went away, he took with him every scrap of the "white curl papers," to be laid up with rose leaves, and preserved for future reference; whilst the dismissal of the bachelor barber was as final as he had been permanent.

So much for lovers' quarrels.

A Resolute Vocalist.

Some two years ago, when the gallant Col. Magruder commanded the United States forces at the mission of San Diego, it entered into that officer's head to execute a serenade for the benefit of certain fair ladies then honoring New Town with their presence. Accordingly, all the officers of the mess who could sing, play, or beat time, were pressed into the service, and one night about twelve o'clock, a jolly crowd left the mission for New Town, in a large wagon, plentifully furnished with guitars, flutes, drums, and a host of a variety of instruments.

Placing his guitar under his arm, he proceeded with a rapid step to the residence of his beloved. He was a little uncertain where to find her, but at length, seeing a light proceeding from a window at the west end of the house, came to the conclusion that that was the proper position, and accordingly, stationing himself beneath, began to play, accompanying the instrument with the words of serenade which he had seen in the newspaper a day or two before.

"The winds are at rest, and the lake, love, is keeping silence; silver and blue."

The birds are silent in the brake, love,

And the roses are glistening with dew.

Then wakes, O, wakes,

For the bright lake is glistening

In the moon's lovely ray,

And the night bird is singing,

On the lea.

The window opened as the verse closed. Augustus looked up, and was delighted to see a female form—Charlotte, without doubt—leaning from the window.

"Lady," he exclaimed, "bestow upon your devoted slave one word, that may know himself not entirely indifferent to you."

"At length the answer came—

"I say, mama, that's a mighty good fiddle of yours. What's not you turn him up again? Jest a little p'lease."

"Angels and ministers of grace!" exclaimed our hero, quite taken aback; that's not Charlotte. Speaker, who are you?

"Lor, massa, don't be in a tantrum. I'm black Nelly. Miss Charlotte's gone to Newport for a month."

Augustus was about to move off, quite disengaged from his love, when he turned back again.

"Lady, I'm not going to leave you."

"I say, massa, you're a good boy."

The Know-Nothings—No. 4.

Ma. Karros.—Justice to the subject under consideration, in my last number, demands that it should receive some further notice. I do not wish it to be understood that it is the party consideration or dollars and cents alone, which actuates the American Party, in their advocacy of reform in our Immigration laws. They are impelled by higher and holier motives; namely, the preservation of our glorious institutions, which our forefathers have transmitted to us under the solemn responsibility that we would preserve them against "the insidious wiles of foreign influence."

In a former article, I endeavored to show that it was the design of the despots of Europe to subvert our institutions. This is not only corroborated by the following important testimony of one of their number, but their motus operandi herein clearly set forth. The Duke of Richmond, when Governor of the Canadas, said in an address delivered at Montreal:

"The government of the United States is weak, inconsistent, and bad, and cannot long exist." "It will be destroyed; it ought not, and will not be permitted to exist; for many and great are the evils which have resulted from the existence of that government. The curse of the French revolution, and subsequent wars and commotions in Europe, are to be attributed to its example; and so long as it exists no Prince will be safe upon his throne; and the sovereigns of Europe are aware of it, and they have determined upon its destruction, and have come to an understanding upon this subject, and have decided upon the means to accomplish it, and they will eventually succeed by subversion, rather than conquest.—All nations of Europe will be carried into that country; it is and will be a receptacle for the bad and disaffected population of Europe, when they are not wanted for soldiers, or to supply the navies and the European governments will have a safe recourse. This will create a surplus, and a majority of low population, who are easily excited; and they will bring with them their principles, and in nine cases out of ten, adhere to their ancient and former governments, laws, manners, customs, and religion, and will transmit them to their posterity, and in many cases propagate them among the natives. These men will become citizens, and by their constitution and laws will be invested with the right of suffrage. The different grades of society will then be created by the elevation of a few, and by degrading many, and thus a heterogeneous population will be formed, speaking different languages, and of different religions and sentiments; and to make them set apart, and feel alike, in political affairs, will be like mixing oil and water; hence, discord, dissensions, anarchy, and civil war will ensue, and some popular individual will assume the government, and restore order, and the sovereigns of Europe, the immigrants, and many of the natives will sustain him." "The Church of Rome has a design upon that country, and it will, in time, be the established religion, and will aid in the destruction of that republic." "I have conversed with many of the sovereigns and princes of Europe, and they have unanimously expressed their opinions relative to the government of the United States, and their determination to subvert it."

When Francis, emperor of Austria, in conjunction with other European despots, established the "Leopold Foundation," the avowed object of which was, "to promote emigration, and the greater activity of Catholic missions to the United States," he said: "As long as I live, I will oppose a will of iron to the progress of liberal principles. The present generation is lost, but we must labor with zeal and earnestness to improve the spirit of that which is to come. It may require an hundred years [to overthrow our government] I am not unreasonable. I give you a whole age, but you must work without relaxation."

Thus we see an indomitable spirit and determination, manifested by the allied forces of Europe, to extinguish the flame of civil and religious liberty, which shines with such resplendent beauty in our land, and is gilding with its rich and mellow light the gloomy horizon of the old world. This is in perfect keeping with their practice in all ages. The star of light and liberty that dawned upon the Old World, during the slumber of the dark ages, arose in southern France among the Albigenses. The Pope of Rome forthwith summoned the mailed warriors of the North, who poured down upon them, and extinguished this star in a sea of blood. Again, Wickliffe, in 1380, dared to raise his voice in England against the divine right of Kings to sway the sceptre over the consciences of men—Germany and Bohemia caught the spark, which called forth from "this holiness" another war of extermination. Again, at a period when ignorance and superstition held tyrannic sway, the immortal Luther raised his mighty voice, and, as from the touch of the spear of Ithuriel, the dark clouds of mental degradation were rolled back, and man again beheld himself.

"God-like, erect and free,
Without native honor clad."

The HARVEST IN ENGLAND.—The various reports that have reached us concur in stating that the present harvest will considerably exceed the average of some years past, and this remark more particularly applies to the oat and barley crops. While the wheat is said in some instances to be deficient in weight and produce where the soil is poor, in the richer ground the crop is all that can be desired as regards quality and quantity. The potato crop, in some instances, has not been as productive as was expected at an earlier part of the year; but those that remain are of excellent quality, and unlike for many years, little deterioration is at present taking place. At no period, within the memory of the oldest farmer, have the crops of the agricultural laborers exceeded the rate at which they are at present found. Above all laborers can with difficulty be had, while their employers are glad to except their services at 2s. a day; to the women they readily pay 1s., while boys and girls can only be hired in proportion.

Twice did the spirit of liberal principles, which he infused into the heart of the people, cause the cruel Ferdinand to be hurried from his throne by his own subjects. This tyrant invoked the aid of the allied powers. They forthwith reinstated him upon a throne reeking with republican blood, and the throbs of liberty were again stilled from the Pyrenees to the ocean.

Space forbids my speaking of the more recent struggles of unhappy Poland, twice struck down by the stalwart arm of Russia; of bleeding Hungary, the home of the Kossuths; of Greece, "sad relic of departed glory"; of Italy, "the sanctuary of saints"; yea, of Germany, our fatherland. The lessons of republicanism which these nations have received from this "wavelatory school," have called down upon them the exterminating sword of the allied despots, who are now directing their deep laid plots against us. They have been taught by sad experience, that "Freedom's time finds wings on every wind."

Thus it is seen that these despots are ranged together to crush out the last spark of liberty from the earth. America is the only nation they now dread, and they have concocted their deeply hidden schemes for her destruction. They know that they cannot effect it by open combat; hence they are determined to inundate us with the refuse of their own countries—"a heterogeneous, incoherent, dislocated mass"—(to use the language of Jefferson) who are as ignorant of our Institutions as an Esquimaux or a Tartar. The ratio of increase for the last thirty years, this discordant element will be sufficiently powerful in another half of a century, to effect this object. In 1820, only about one in thirty of our population was of foreign birth; now, one in five is a foreigner; and the cry is still, "They come." The Father of our country long since said: "My opinion with respect to immigration is, except of useful mechanics, and some particular descriptions of men and professions, there is no need of encouragement." Truly if his prophetic eye saw through the dim vista of the future, the danger which menaced us from foreign immigration, now that the dreadful reality so plainly stares us in the face, we will not remain unconcerned. When Europe has the daring effrontry to avow, that she will destroy us, not with her armes, but with her scum, her criminals and paupers, whom too great a hospitality has led us to receive to our bosoms, we should in the future say to these incoming millions that are pouring in upon us, "thus far shall thou come and no farther."

PRO BONO PUBLICO.
DANVILLE, O. T. 3, 1854.

TRAGICAL AFFAIR.—We have absolutely become sick in recording the tragical occurrence which take place so repeatedly among us. JAMES O. FRAZER, of this county, came to his death on Saturday night last by a gun shot wound. He had been absent on business in the city of New York for the last four months, returned that evening to his home about six miles from the city, and within an hour after his return was a corpse. Mr. Lewis Castleton, who resides close by Frazer's residence, being in the city when F. arrived, took him home in his buggy, leaving him in his yard and returning to his own residence about three quarters of a mile off. About forty minutes after he left him, he was informed that Mr. Frazer had shot himself, and immediately repaired to his (Frazer's) house. When he arrived, he found him lying on a lounge dead, with a wound on his left hand and in the region of his stomach, evidently produced by the discharge of a gun. And the last number of the Administration organ has a long and labored article, intended to show that the doctrines of Know-Nothingism are forbidden in the Bible. The organ, in its argument, relies upon the commands given through Moses to the Jewish nation in the 33d and 34th verses of the 19th chapter of Leviticus: If a stranger sojourn with thee in thy land, he shall not vex him, but the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you and thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt. I am the Lord your God.

We believe the Know-Nothings seldom or never undertake to argue with their opponents, their forte being action rather than argument, but possibly, if they were in an ardent mood, they might tell the Washington organ that the Lord did not command the Israelites to let strangers make laws for them, or to vote for strangers' elections, and that it is considerably more than doubtful whether they had any elections at all.

The circumstances of his death as detailed by Griggs, and corroborated by Mrs. Frazer, were these: that they were sitting in the front porch of the house, when Mr. F. observed the rats running about the yard, stated that he would shoot them. He went into the house, obtained his gun, and in the act of returning stumbled and fell, the gun exploding in the act of falling, and wounding him as described, from the effects of which he died almost instantly, after running into a back room of the house. During the next day (Sunday) the horrible stupor took possession of the minds of some of his neighbors, that he had been murdered, and on Sunday night a warrant was issued by Judge Graves, of the County Court, (upon information being given to him upon oath that there was reason to suspect that he had met his death by foul means) for the arrest of his (Frazer's) wife and Griggs. They were arrested on Monday morning, brought to town, and are now under examination before Judge Graves. It would be out of the line of our course to make any comments upon the facts thus far elicited on the trial.

WE may say that we have scarcely ever recorded an occurrence which has given a more painful shock to the public feeling. The lady in question is the daughter of the late Maj. Wm. S. Dallam, and is closely connected with some of our most respectable citizens. Most sincerely do we hope that the ground of this terrible accusation may be baseless.

Frazer was a man about thirty-five or forty years of age, a native of Ireland, but had resided in this country for about fifteen years.—Lou. Jour.

THE National Intelligencer says that the mails continue to furnish cold comfort for the fiancés makers, either as regards the crops at home or abroad.—To crops in England and throughout Europe generally prove to be unusually abundant. The London Times, in a leader on the subject says:

From this harvest to the next there can be no doubt that the difference in the price of wheat compared with that in the previous twelve months will be at least 2s. a quarter in favor of the public, which, on the whole consumption will amount to a sum of twenty-five million of pounds to that body on wheat alone, besides corresponding relief in other grain.

Even the cost of the war sinks to a trifling sum compared with this bounty from the skies; and notwithstanding all the lavish expenditure incurred, we now stand better prepared for war by some twenty millions than a twelve month ago.

MAINE ELECTION.—It seems, according to the regular statements of the Age, an administration organ in that State, that the Democracy of Maine have turned their backs upon the President. At the recent election there were cast:

Against the Administration 57,391
For the Administration 31,229

Ansi-Administration maj. 26,092

This is a severe commentary upon the course of General Pierce's administration.

Some persons in Canada begin to look upon the influx of fugitive slaves in that country as an evil may be inferred from a moment's glance in the Canadian Legislature that the same capitation tax now imposed on all strangers entering the province be exacted in future from black immigrants.

THE KNOW-NOTHINGS.—The New York correspondent of the National Intelligencer denies that proscription of Roman Catholics forms a feature in the Know-Nothings creed. He says the most numerous and the most zealous of the order in Louisiana are the Catholic Creoles. The following extract from a leading New York paper is considered as something semi-official on the subject:

Paducah Democrat.

"Frequent allusions are made, in various forms, to the hostility between the Roman Catholics and the Know-Noths; and simple justice seems to demand that the real grounds of the dissension should be clearly understood. New papers of various classes, including the National Intelligencer and others in different parts of the country have protested against the Know-Noths; as, financial enemies of the Roman Catholic Religion. The Know-Noths, on the contrary, have repeatedly disavowed this charge, insisting that they do not oppose any religion or practice whatever, but, the opposite, were faithful friends and protectors of religious freedom, nor in the sense of Bishop Hughes, but in its real old and common signification. But, they say, what they oppose is Roman Catholic Politics, which often assumes the name of the Roman Catholic religion, but is, a wholly distinct thing. They admit, recognize and sustain the right in any and all who choose to worship in the Roman Catholic churches, to believe and profess what they please in religion; but that they will not admit nor submit to any one who attempts to put down by club-law, free debate, or free preaching, in the towns or open air, nor allow a foreign influence to interfere with elections, or to raise or threaten a mob law, or to threaten citizens with the consequences if they do not substitute the canon law of Rome for the state laws of the Union.—Even though such subversive attempts may be made under the name of religion, their opposers claim to be able to discriminate, and are fully convinced that in opposing them they oppose nothing religious, but what is purely political, and at the same time wrong, anti-American, and intolerable."

"ON Hawaii Kanai, and in some parts of Maui, wheat, Irish potatoes, peaches, strawberries, &c., of a fine quality, are easily raised. Grapes abound, but the manufacture of wine is prohibited. Sugar and coffee are likely to be the great staples of the islands. The plantations are generally worked by Chinese coolies, who are employed at the rate of $3 per month in China, and bound to service for a Gentleman's complete wardrobe, except Hats and Boots. He respectively and earnestly asks the gentlemen of Danville and the surrounding country, in want of elegant and fashionable clothing, to give him a call when they visit Lexington, to have him sell him a pair of last to fit him. He has pleasure every last with his goods, and on such terms as cannot fail to commend him to the patronage of the most distinguished persons. Gentlemen from a distance can send their orders, with their measures, and they shall be promptly attended to."

"He brought with him a number of Pattern Suites of Clothes, made by the most celebrated Tailors in New York, which he will take pleasure in showing to his customers. All the tailors in Danville will be warranted to equal to any made in America, he has been at no little trouble and expense to possess himself of the latest and most fashionable styles, and has in his employ now but the very best workmen."

"Call and see his Goods."

KENTUCKY TRIBUNE

JNO. F. ZIMMERMAN & SON—EDITORS.

DANVILLE, KY.,

FRIDAY, OCT. 6, 1854.

THE FAIR.

The third annual Fair of the Central Kentucky Association commenced on the grounds near this place on Tuesday last. On that day, notwithstanding the fact that it rained at intervals during most of the time devoted to the exhibition, the attendance of spectators was quite large, and we suppose that no one could have had the heart to murmur at the rain, though it of course interfered very seriously with their enjoyment. The articles exhibited were very respectable in number, and highly meritorious in quality. Many of them on account of the weather, could not be satisfactorily displayed to the spectators, the judges being obliged to inspect the quilts, and most of the other products of the skill and industry of our fair countrymen in the secretary's office.

The second day was devoted to the exhibition of horse stock and poultry. The attendance on that day was much larger than on the preceding one, and as the weather was clear and cool, the entire exhibition passed off very pleasantly to those concerned in it, as well as to the spectators. The display of horse stock, though not so large as we have seen at previous fairs of this association, was sufficiently extensive to be highly interesting. Many fine animals were shown and in some instances it was quite a nice matter for the judges to decide between them.

Yesterday was devoted to the exhibition of cattle, sheep and hogs, but as our paper was put to press before the close, we are unable to give any account of it. The exhibition of to-day, which closes the fair, will be devoted to jacks, mules, and saddle and harness horses. A fine show of these animals is anticipated.

The proceedings of each day are very agreeably interspersed with the fine music of the Danville Saxhorn Band, under the direction of Mr. Strohs.

We publish in another column, a list of the premiums awarded on the first and second days of the fair, and will next week publish the entire list, for the accommodation of those who wish to preserve it altogether.

The display of fruits and flowers by Mr. G. H. Wither, of the Boyle Gardens, on the first day of the fair, was remarkably fine for the season. The very best varieties of fruit trees, green-house plants and evergreens, are grown by Mr. W., and he is prepared to fill all orders, however large, for anything in the nursery line.

Our old friend, Nick Sandifer, of Lanesboro, on the first day of the fair, exhibited the finest lot of boots and shoes, of every kind, that we have ever examined. His display embraced work of every grade, from a beautiful light silk garter to a heavy substantial stock boot, all well-made and finely finished.

The Cutting Box, which received the premium at our fair on Tuesday last was made by Mr. R. Noel of Shelbyville. It is said to be a highly superior article, a great favorite with all who use it. Mr. N. has the right for the State.

BRAINY'S PLOUGH.—It will be seen by reference to the list of premiums, that the ploughs manufactured by our friend BRINKLEY, of Shelby county, have again been victorious. They are pronounced by those who are using them, to be the very best ploughs now made, and many farmers in this section have been using them exclusively for a number of years. Mr. R. M. Robinson, of Garrard, says, after eight years trial, that they are superior to any others he has ever seen. Mr. B.'s plough also received the premium at the Bourbon fair, where it was exhibited by his agents, Miller, Wingate & Co., of Louisville.

"THE LITTLE GIANT."—We call the attention of Farmers and Stock-feeders to this Cons and Coal Mill now on exhibition at our Fair. It seems to us that every farmer should have such a mill, when one will, with one horse, grind good feed, at the rate of 10 to 12 bushels per hour. Our farmers have paid but little attention to the economy of feeding. The present short crops may force upon them a system of feeding that will in a great measure make up for the deficiency—and which they will find profitable to practice hereafter.

THE WEATHER.—We have been blessed during the past week with delightful weather. For instance, on Sunday, Monday, and Tuesday we had fine rains, and since then the weather has been cool and seasonable. Quite a heavy frost fell on Wednesday night.

FINE APPLES.—Mr. W. G. Budd, has our thanks for a couple of Apples—the finest we have seen for a long time. He brought them all the way from New York to us. What do you think of that, Friend Gibbons?

A MONSTER LUMP OF COAL.—Messrs. Robinson & Hoskins, of Garrard, will accept our thanks for a mammoth lump of coal of the best quality, from Cumberland river. It is a specimen of what they are now prepared to furnish to our citizens. A few more such lumps would almost induce us to put up a gate.

WE are requested to state that Gen. Downs, of Louisiana, did not die at the Crab Orchard Springs on Monday, 14th August, as stated in the papers. He died on Sunday the 13th, at Bryant's Springs, near Crab Orchard, and his remains were interred on Mr. Bryant's place, where they are subject to the order of his friends. Letters from the relatives of the deceased, desiring information in regard to his death, will be answered by Mr. E.

The New Orleans papers will please copy this notice.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—We are indebted to our friend McKNIGHT for Harper for October—an excellent number. Mac has just received a new supply of the most popular late publications.

THE cholera broke out at Bowlinggreen on Monday week, and has since raised with considerable fatality. Abner F. Vance, Esq., is the only white person who has died in the town, though there have been 12 or 15 deaths in the country.

ODD FELLOWSHIP IN THE UNITED STATES.—We are indebted to our fellow citizen, M. J. DURHAM, Esq., Gr. Rep. from Kentucky to the Grand Lodge of the United States, I. O. O. F., for the following statement of the condition of the Order, as reported at the sessions of that body in 1853 and 1854, and also the increase of the Order during the year intervening between those two sessions:

Lodges,	1853.	1854.	Increase
2941	3110	169
Members, 193,030	204,000	10,970
Revenue, $1,209,229	$1,375,000	$165,773
Relief, $491,322	$450,000	$39,678

*Expended for the relief of the sick, burial of the dead, and education of the orphan.

The Grand Lodge of the Canadas has thrown up its charter, and the lodges there at their own request have again been brought under the authority of the Grand Lodge of the United States. Since that has been done, the lodges in British America have increased from 6 to 15. The Gr. Sis has decided, in answer to a query from the Grand Master of California, that Chinese may be admitted to membership, and a lodge allowed to work in the Chinese language.

DEATH OF HON. PRESLEY EWING.—Hon. Presley Ewing, of Logan, member of Congress from the 2d district, died at the Mammoth Cave on Wednesday last, of cholera. He is supposed to have contracted the disease at Bowlinggreen, and was under its influence when he reached the Cave. Mr. E. was one of the most promising and popular young men in the State, and his death will be regretted wherever he is known.

SPECIAL ELECTION.—The Governor has issued a proclamation fixing on Monday, November the 13th, as the day for electing a Representative in Congress, to fill the vacancy occasioned by the death of Hon. Presley Ewing.

MARYSVILLE AND LEYTONG RAILROAD.—We have heard to learn from the Marysville Eagle, that there is a fair prospect that arrangements will be made early to resume the construction of this road. Energetic business men have taken hold of the matter and will carry it to completion if it be possible. The unsettled state of the financial market operates very much against the road; but the prospects of success, says the Eagle, are very flattering.

GROWTH OF CATHOLICISM.—According to the statement by the Pilot, it appears that the whole force of Catholicism in the United States has more than doubled within the last 8 years. In 1846 there were 21 dioceses—now there are 41; the number of churches was then 700; now there are 1712; then the number of clergy was 757, now 1574.

THE display of fruits and flowers by Mr. G. H. Wither, of the Boyle Gardens, on the first day of the fair, was remarkably fine for the season. The very best varieties of fruit trees, green-house plants and evergreens, are grown by Mr. W., and he is prepared to fill all orders, however large, for anything in the nursery line.

THE editor of the Harrodsburg Ploughboy suggests that our Senior be nominated as Whig candidate for Congress in this district—that may be a way the scamp has of getting us to return the compliment by mentioning him to the Democracy of his own district for Congress. But we are a bad hand to take a hint, and besides hears is too scarce for us to wish to see our fat neighbor up forught. Why, there would hardly be a good reason of spot of him left, after he swayed through the canvass.

For the Kentucky Tribune, Omnipotence of the Press.

GOING.—The New York Tribune says: the receipts of gold from California during the last twelve months have amounted to fifty-three millions of dollars. The export from New York during the same time has been thirty-six millions and a half, leaving sixteen million and a half in this country. According to the Secretary of the Treasury, we have received one hundred and ninety-four millions of gold from California since 1849.

A momentous and most painful discovery was recently made at Washington city. The supposed secretary of the supposed Know-Nothing association accidentally left his list of members, with whom he had sent it to press. The list was seized with eagerness by the opponents of the new order, and was displayed as a new proof of the flagitiousness of their designs. But the significant fact was soon discovered that it comprised the names of nearly all the prominent Democratic politicians, and was forthwith pronounced a base forgery.

The Washington correspondent of the N. Y. Courier and Inquirer says that another incident of an equally alarming character took place at Washington a few weeks since. A resolution was taken in Cabinet to purge the departments of all the clerks suspected upon probable grounds of "Know-Nothing" proclivities. The result showed the inexpediency of all secret and extra proceedings. The persons turned out have testified, since their fall that they knew nothing of the Know-Nothings, while their successors are shown by later developments to have been trusted members of the mysterious association.

THE THIRTY-SECOND STATE.—A bill was introduced into Congress, providing for the admission of Oregon into the Union as a State, and the legislature of Oregon is taking the preliminary steps for calling a convention to form a constitution. In the year 1856, Oregon will probably be the thirty-third state in the Union. Its population already exceeds forty thousand, and the emigration to it is likely to be very large this year. Accounts from the territory represent the people as prospering; valuable gold mines and other minerals are discovered. As a farming region it is unsurpassed by any of the old States, even rivaling wealth her southern neighbor, California. In 1850, the population of Oregon was only 13,294. It is now 40,000. In two years more it will contain a sufficient number of inhabitants doubtless to entitle it to admission as a State.

WE are requested to state that Gen. Downs, of Louisiana, did not die at the Crab Orchard Springs on Monday, 14th August, as stated in the papers. He died on Sunday the 13th, at Bryant's Springs, near Crab Orchard, and his remains were interred on Mr. Bryant's place, where they are subject to the order of his friends. Letters from the relatives of the deceased, desiring information in regard to his death, will be answered by Mr. E.

FITTING OUT VESSELS IN NEW YORK FOR THE SLAVE TRADE.—The U. S. district attorney, Mr. McKEON, caused James Smith, captain of the brig Julia Moulton, to be arrested on a charge of having conveyed 660 slaves from Africa to Cuba in that vessel, on her last voyage. He was committed for examination. William C. Valentine, a merchant of New York, was also arrested, charged with being concerned in fitting out that vessel, in that port, for that voyage. He was required to find bail in $20,000 in default of which he was committed to prison. It would appear that since January last, the fitting out of vessels for the slave trade has been a regular business in New York.

See second page for "Know-Nothings" No.

IT is estimated that the surplus of wheat raised the present season in Canada, will amount to 12,000,000 bushels.

Military funerals are managed in a hasty manner. After burying the defunct, the band comes back and serenades the widow.

The (Trenton, Tenn.) Southern White Standard, flings to the breeze the names of John Bell for President and Rufus Choate for Vice President.

IN Montgomery county, Tennessee, corn is only worth $1 per bushel. The present crop is said to be very fair in that county.

The Princeton Kentuckian reports a sale of five hundred bushels of corn, in Crittenden county, at twenty-eight cents.

Potatoes are selling at fourty¢ a dime in New Orleans. The Picayune says the man who would bring a few thousand barrels there, just now, would make a fortune.

It is proposed to run Hon. A. Dixie for Congress in the Second District next year, irrespective of party considerations. The proposal appears in a Democratic paper.

Gov. Johnson, of Georgia, has offered to relieve the people of Savannah from the State treasury, trusting to the generosity of the people to ratify his course.

Mr. R. S. Williams has issued a prospectus for a new paper, to be issued soon in Winchester, and was under its influence when he reached the Cave. Mr. E. was one of the most promising and popular young men in the State, and his death will be regretted wherever he is known.

DEATH OF HON. PRESLEY EWING.—Hon. Presley Ewing, of Logan, member of Congress from the 2d district, died at the Mammoth Cave on Wednesday last, of cholera. He is supposed to have contracted the disease at Bowlinggreen, and was under its influence when he reached the Cave. Mr. E. was one of the most promising and popular young men in the State, and his death will be regretted wherever he is known.

THE Terre Haute papers say that nearly all the stock hogs in that region have been bought up and driven to the north part of the State for fattening.

COVINGTON DISTRICT.—The Covington Daily Journal, a friend of the editor of the Nashville Banner, residing a few miles from that city, has furnished to that paper the following statement of the quantity of rain that fell from the 1st of June to the 20th of September in the years 1853 and 1854:

1853. Rain fell in June (very dry weather) .25 inches

Rain fell in July (very wet) .12 "

Rain fell in August (very wet) .60 "

From Sept. 1 to Sept. 20 (very wet) .60 "
